The world is 'all agog' among the needy fashion-Distressed tory squirtens, with a host of younger sons, candidates for preferment in the Army, Navy, and Church establishments, are brushing up the once fashionable suit which has hung on furlough the last literative campaign in the West End, when all the world will be 'in town.' Speculating mammas with more titles than acres, and more unprovided daughters than they well know what to trip to the great Metropolis, where, by that species of female generalship, which only such people know, they may effect unions while O'Connell is endeavoring to repeal others. The Port of Chrinnari.—A May day in February entired us to the river side. The scene was exhilarating and beautiful. Twenty-three steamboats were actively engaged in receiving or unloading produce and goods. Sixteen hundred miles from the ocean, great vess-ls, as large as the Atlantic packets, were inloading cargoes from South America, from England, from China, and from every soot where winged Commerce has touched by foot. There, too, the products of the Maani vellew were should, in turn, for every coast on every ley were shipped, in turn, for every coast on every

A steamboat was just turning the curve in the lower part of the city, and was wonding her way to the great outlet below. Another was a ferry-boat, flitting across the river; and above lay dozens of others, repairing or laying up. On the opposite side, the Kentucky towns seemed as if they too felt the impulse of the country, and grew with the course impulse of the country, and grew with the course of each day's sen.

As we cast our eyes upon the opposite point of the Licking, we thought what a proper place that was for a monument to Jons Firen. There a column of native limestone should rise from the soil of the State which costains his askes, and look out upon the rolling waters of that river which gave him the first idea of the steamboat. It should be a simple soiled pedestal, inscribed with his name; and from that should rise high in the air a single column, broken at the top, to signify that when Genius had risen far above the dull atmosphere which surrounded it, it was at last broken from its purpose, and perished unfinished. "The undersigned have this day witnessed the trial of one of Rich's improved patent Salamander Safes in the fornace of the Sea Bird.

"The Safe was placed in the fornace at 10 minutes after 11 o'clock A. M. and remained there three hours, constantly exposed to the most intense heat that could be created by the use of pitchpine and cottonwood. It was then taken to the store of Mr. Rich's agent in this city and opened, when they found that the contents were neither burned nor scorched and that the wood-work bore no appearance of having been exposed to fire.

"The undersigned are convinced that this Safe was subjected to greater in." than could possibly exist at the burnel convenience of the store of the convinced that this Safe was subjected to greater in." than could possibly exist at the burnels.

jected to greater has the convinced that this Sale burning of any building in this city, however combostible its contents; and they the fore have no hesitation in saying that Rich's Safes are emiliently secure against the risk of fire, under any circumstances whatever.
